A Salute To The Va. Dept. of Agriculture & Commerce On Its 100th Birthday

By David N. Grinwood
State Conservationist
USDA, Soil Conservation Service

The success story of American agriculture is known all over the world. The reasons for that success are many: good soils, a favorable climate, industrious farmers, a private enterprise system and the creation of state and federal agencies for the purpose of providing support services to our farmers. The Va. Dept. of Agriculture and Commerce is one of those agencies, created a hundred years ago, first to control the content of fertilizers and later to regulate the use of pesticides and to administer many laws and regulations aimed at protecting farmers, consumers and the public. It is a real pleasure for me to salute the Department of Agriculture and Commerce as it celebrates its 100th year. It is also a pleasure to salute the present Commissioner of the Department, S. Mason Carbaugh, for the part he and the Department have played in helping make good use of Virginia's resources in producing food and fiber for our people.

Today we hear a lot about conservation, ecology and the environment. I wonder how many of our people remember when gullied fields, muddy streams, wormy apples and diseased animals were common sights to see. Or how many remember when worms and insects destroyed crops before they were harvested, or if they were harvested, how much the farmer had to produce just to feed the rates. Talk about freedoderf

Have you wondered what our countryside would look like today if we could expect only these yields of a hundred years ago? Or if we still had to feed all those freeloading vermin? I expect we'd really be plowing from fence to fence and from creek to hilltop. Talk about conservation - we'd certainly not have as many forests or as much wildlife or cool streams in which to fish! And we'd need a lot of terraces to hold our soils on our steep hill in order to prooduce enough food for you and me. I wonder, too, how many people it would take to produce all that food to feed all those insects, worms and rats. I'll bet a lot of people who spend time going to school, riding around, fishing, painting, and doing thousands of other things, would be helping grow the crops to produce the food for you and me.

I salute Commissioner Carbaugh and the Department of Agriculture and Commerce, not only for doing a good job of administering the laws and regulations that protect us, but also for supporting the conservation of soil and water, for advocating the protection of prime farmland to keep it from going to other uses, and for promoting programs in rural areas that are designed to improve life for our rural people.

Agriculture has been important to our nation for more than a hundred years, but it will become even more so in the years to come as we try to feed ourselves and a hungry world. It is very fitting that all Virginians salute the Department of Agriculture and Commerce on its 100th birthday.

Super Dollar Reports Sales

Super Dollar Stores, Inc (OTC), a discount variety chain of 127 stores headquartered in Raleigh, N. C., reported sales of $7,998,000 for its first quarter ended May 21, 1977, an increase of $1,686,000, or 27% over sales of $6,312,000 for the same quarter of last year. Leon M. Melvin, its President, reported that February sales were adversely affected by unseasonably cold weather and related energy shortages.

In April of this year, the Company incurred an after-tax extraordinary loss of $46,000, or 7c a share, from flood damage to merchandise in two of its Virginia/West Virginia stores. After absorbing this loss, current first quarter net income amounted to $109,000, or 18c per share, compared to $132,000, or 20c per share, during the same quarter last year.

Melvin said the Company expects more favorable year-to-year comparisons for the balance of fiscal 1978, particularly during the important eastern United States, which experienced a very good, record-breaking year in sales and earnings.

Local Navy Man In England

JUNE 28 - Midshipman First Class Nathan B. Snell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Snell of P.O.Box 101, Evergreen,Va., is participating in the Silver Jubilee Naval Review in England.

He is a member of the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps (NROTC) unit at Tulane University in New Orleans. This summer, he had been assigned to the amphibious assault ship USS Francis Marion, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

His ship is representing the United States at the Silver Jubilee, which commemorates the 25th anniversary of Queen Elizabeth's coronation.
